Hello Jason,

Can we talk in person about this? I would like to present this to the Chefs and see what we can do to help. When will you be free to meet?

Thank you

Jamie I'm sorry to bother you but I'm struggling today....I have been having differences with Joel about things the past few weeks....I've handled it better before but today I didnt respond well so I gave him a piece of my mind and he sent me on my break and said he could do the station without mebut honestly I put a lot of work into the station daily...I come to work early every single day to make sure things are ready...I work off the clock most times just to get things done but he likes to point out the petty things that have really no value at all...and I find it crazy that he has the nerve to say h can do it alone when I do everything for him....I'm frustrated but at the same time I have a job to do...but its a little tense now between him and I....Im saying all this just to get son advice on how to move forward from here....I dont want to walk out and leave dropbox high and dry but its not working between Joel and I....
