

May 28th, 2020 (Friday's Statement)

On May 28th, 2020, I made a mistake on my order. So I apologized to Asia that day. I fully comprehend when one makes an error they apologize and own up to their mistake. After apologizing to her she made a derogatory statement stating "Omg! she's growing up to a big girl!". The statement was made in front of a customer who was purchasing a meal. I didn't fully understand what she meant but found that offensive. It was like she was bullying me.

Later during the shift she was making several mistakes on the orders on purpose. It was ^{made} ~~made~~ multiple times. Everytime it was a "to go" order it was supposed to be a text order. It was like she did it to make look like it was my mistake. So I told her that she was wrong, she got an attitude and spoke to rudely in front of a customer so I got an attitude back to show her that I am not scared of her tone.

It ~~was~~ all times she ~~does~~ that all the time to make me think it's my fault. I told the manager Jessica Garza about what she was doing. I just want her to stop making any negative comments ^{about} ~~to~~ me because I go to work to work.

Another employee at Starbucks also bullied me when I first started but stopped doing that.
