Today 9:37 AM

I had car trouble and I totally forgot the night before because I didn't get back till 1230 and I get back home till 12:30 AM and I did not know my shift but that was that early the time I got home I was so exhausted and tired. I fell asleep and totally forgot had a shift in the morning because I was stressed out from the work before

My car was not working. I couldn't even get there home until 1230 and that was with Uber and then when I got home at 12:30 I was exhausted from dealing with my car with the AAA and I totally forgot and then when you called me like I forgot, but it happens.

But life happens people car stop working people get back home early late from work and pass out and totally forget. I can still do Friday. You're really making it like it's a big deal. It's really not.

After last night with the car people I totally forgot
