Objective:

I recently relocated to San Francisco from New Hampshire. I am excited to be a part of the hustle and bustle of the big city and hope to gain employment at a busy and exciting restaurant where I can expend upon my already fairly plentiful skills set.

Graduated from High School

January 2006-June 2008

The Evergreen State College
Graduating in June 2012

September 2008-June 2012

Experience:

I spent the last four years attending college at The Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington where I had the opportunity to spend weekends and summers travelling around with a mobile wood-fired pizza kitchen. It was a fast paced exciting job where I learned to make dough, stretch skins, top pizzas, maintain a steady oven temperature, and cook pizzas. Upon graduating I moved home to New Hampshire for a short while (6 months) to save money by making pizza 70 hours a week at two separate restaurants, one a thin-crust, New York-style pizza place and at a fine-dining, wood-fired artisan pizza and Italian food restaurant where I also learned how to work a grill and sauté station as a short-order cook.
