Objective

My objective is to find a place within a restaurant where I can fully put my skills to their most effectual use, and learn something new about myself. I am a very fast, hard-working individual, with tendencies to organize and work efficiently, qualities that make me an excellent busser. The most important quality, though, is a determination to see the job done, and done well. My objective is to put these qualities on full display, and then demonstrate how these qualities can transfer over to any number of positions and roles.

Qualifications

Proficient in the Open Table, Infinity POS, and Aloha systems, as well as all Microsoft Office programs.

Fluent in Spanish and English.

Extensive customer service experience within the restaurant business.

Adapted to a fast-paced and efficient work ambient where multi-tasking is essential, or a more relaxed environment where the points of fine-dining are stressed.

Extremely fast learner with superb organizational skills, a determination and stamina that will see every task done to the highest standards.

A professional and respectful demeanor, reflected in interactions with guests and co-workers

Work Experience

Elliot's Oyster House (Seattle, WA); April 2018 to October 2018

I was hired as a busser and quickly showed I was up to the task of bussing to a set standard, quickly and efficiently without sacrificing quality of customer service. This was reflected in the fact that I was allowed to work night shifts very early on, which usually required extra training. I displayed an ability to bus for larger sections without being overwhelmed, as in when additional tables were added to a section, or was asked to take half of a section of someone who was struggling. I consider myself very much a team-player, and I routinely walked the floor to make sure everything was in order, as long as my section was properly looked after.

Collections Cafe/Chihuly Garden and Glass (Seattle, WA); April 2017 to January 2018

I was hired at Collections Cafe as a busser, but was immediately thrown into events and banquets operations. I immediately impressed salespeople, managers and the rest of the staff by being quick and professional. I shied away from no task, volunteering for any lifting, inventorying and organizing. As was explained to me by management, weddings, receptions and dinners all steadily improved after I began my employment there. I moved, stored, inventoried and organize all sodas, juices and liquor, and would come in any day and any time to do this, even if it meant being called in an hour before it had to be done. I learned and covered the expo, barista and host positions when asked, and could double as a busser and expo when required. I never slowed down or stopped working to converse, but still maintained friendly and amiable relationships with co-workers. I try and keep everything going smoothly, and I would regularly check schedules for errors, talk with hostesses about any special requests and generally maintain an eye on the entire restaurant and/or event.

Bottega Louie (Los Angeles, CA); August 2016 to February 2017

I was called back from a large pool of applicants to the premier location in Downtown Los Angeles, and started as a busser. The pace was very fast, and I managed to adapt well to both the speed and use of large oval trays. I communicated and worked with other bussers and the host staff to set tables quickly and efficiently. My organizational tendencies, ease with guests and overall enthusiasm and determination while working led management to ask me to start training as a server after two months. I preferred to work as a runner for a period first, to better familiarize myself with the food.
